

A student's mother accuses you of being lazy because you facilitate project-based learning rather than traditional lecture-based approach.	Allow the action to continue
You heard that the headmaster of the school discouraged some of your students for the science project they are so excited about.	Think "It's time for more field trips"
You caught a group of students cheating in the exam.	Sleep
A student whom you know to have ADD/ADHD often interrupts the flow of the class loudly.	Do interpret dance to explain your feelings
A student whom you know to have dyslexia is struggling with their reading assignments.	You noticed that boys and girls in your classroom are sitting on separate sides of the classroom today.

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

You realized a student has brought their pet into the classroom today.	You have detected plagiarism in the final essay of one of your students.
A student says they don't want to do the classwork.	One of your students is participating in a national science competition and they are requesting a temporary waiver for your assignments.
Your phone suddenly rings during class.	You realized that a student has not fulfilled their responsibilities in a successful group project, but they are claiming credit for it.
You noticed that a student is voluntarily helping another student with a project assignment.	One of your students is having trouble with the subject you are teaching but you know that they are good at other subjects.
A student constantly takes a defensive position against your feedback and gets in arguments with you.	Another teacher just insulted one of your students in front of you.

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Quite several your students failed to submit the homework assignment on time.	You need your students to use mobile devices for an in-class project, but you are worried that they will get distracted.
A student is attempting to intimidate you with their parents' socioeconomical status.	All your students scored above average in the standardized test.
A student often sleeps in the class.	Some students are complaining about not going outside enough.
A student is dominating the discussions in class.	An immigrant student got mocked during class by a native student for their accent.
It was brought to your attention that a boy is being bullied outside of the classroom.	You have observed that an international student is having trouble socializing.

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Some of your students want to find out more about a topic that you have little information on.

You saw a student crying in the hallway.

A new student is coming into your classroom next week and you are informed that they have the Asperger's Syndrome.

Several your students failed the test, but you need to move on to the next chapter.

Two girls laughing at the back of the classroom while you are teaching

It was brought to your attention that some of the boys in your classroom are organizing for a fight after school today.

A student has the habit of secretly informing you about the misbehaviors of their peers with the hope of gaining your respect.

An exemplary student suddenly started to skip school on a regular basis.

A student just got a loud applause from the classroom for challenging you in a disrespectful manner. You are on the spot.

You found out that the science labs of the school you just got assigned to are sorrowfully underfunded.

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

One of your students have OCD and they get distracted if an object in the classroom is not symmetrical.	A student just called another student dumb for their comment on the in-class discussion.
Your school decided to follow a new protocol: From now on, the students will evaluate the teachers, and this will be reflected on your salary.	One of your students constantly turn in essays that are much longer than you required. Content is top-notch, but they are still too long.
You just earned $25.000.000 lottery and first thing that came to your mind is quitting your teaching job in the middle of the year.	It is one of those moments...Your students are totally out of control...Sometimes you think they don't deserve the education you offer...
You ran into one of your student's father in the store as you were buying a cart FULL of alcohol for a party. He is a preacher in the church!	You caught one of the girls passing a note to another girl during class. You took and read the note and it is the cutest love poem ever.
One of your students appear to never listen to the class. Yet, they excel in all your exams!	This is your first day ever in teaching, you just walked into the classroom and you are very nervous!

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

It turns out that today you're wearing the exact same outfit as one of your 8th graders!	You disapprove the teaching methods of the assistant teacher who was assigned to shadow you.
One of the girls in the classroom constantly asks questions about the subject that you don't have answers for.	While at a store, you recognize one of your students and they look nervous and worried.
You suspect that one of your students is mentally gifted and could use a special education, but you love their presence in the classroom.	The curriculum requires you to provide sex education to your students, but you are too shy because you were raised in a religious family.
Boys in the classroom are begging you for live-streaming the World Cup final during your class.	Two of your students are athletes and they do not pay attention to the class since they already secured scholarships for college.
You noticed that quite a few your students started to use the trending e-cigarette called JUUL.	You split your pants in the beginning of the exam.

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

Situations(What do
you do when...)

You saw that a student is texting during class

One of your students has returned from a year-long Erasmus study abroad and they're struggling with catching up.

A new student says they have already learned the lessons and demands more advanced material.

Students in the senior year demand your class time to individually prepare for the SATs that are approaching.

You are required to teach from a biology textbook which denies Darwin's theory of evolution.

You are aware that some of the material you are required to teach is outdated and useless.